Activities and Services

Stern Undergraduate College Activities and Services

The Offices of Student Life and International Programs are the community building and leadership development centers of Stern Undergraduate College. The offices are responsible for coordinating a wide variety of student programs, projects, ceremonies, and extracurricular activities to enhance Stern’s undergraduate out-of-class experience.

At Stern, students are encouraged to participate in a wide variety of activities outside the classroom. The Office of Student Life coordinates community service, cultural enrichment, and professional development activities. Many of these activities relate to the curriculum, enhancing leadership skills and professional interests, while others are social. Many opportunities also exist for participation in student government and the development of college policy.

The office financially and administratively supports extracurricular activities for its student clubs and organizations, including the following:

STUDENT GOVERNANCE AND PARTICIPATION IN COLLEGE POLICY MAKING

Students play an important role in determining curriculum, programs of study, extracurricular offerings, discipline procedures, and University rules. Thus, it is vital that students be conscious of their responsibility to vote in all elections and the numerous options available to participate in administrative decisions.

At the Undergraduate College, students participate in the deliberations of a number of committees and advisory boards. The Undergraduate College maintains five advisory boards that focus on different areas of strategic importance to the College. Boards consist of student members whose terms last from January through December. Participation on one of the boards enables students to develop leadership skills, make strategic recommendations to the School’s administration, and have a substantial and lasting impact on the College and its student body. The five boards include Academic Life, Arts and Culture, Community Service, Diverse Voices, and Web Community.

Although a great deal of participation has become formalized through student representatives, there is still plenty of room for individual participation. Informal meetings are encouraged, and students are always welcome to meet with the deans and other members of the administration.

DEAN’S STUDENT ADVISORY BOARDS

The Dean’s Advisory Boards work with representatives from the Office of Academic Advising and the Office of Student Life on different issues of importance to the Stern community. The boards, consisting of a representative cross-section of the undergraduate student body, meet regularly to discuss issues that are of concern to the student body and provide input to the deans.

The Dean’s Student Advisory Boards address issues pertaining to the following:
- Academic Life
- Arts and Culture
- Community Service
- Diverse Voices
- Online Community

STUDENT COUNCIL

The Student Council is the representative governmental organization of the students of the Undergraduate College. The council is composed of delegates from each class and seeks to improve the quality of student life at Stern. One of the chief functions of the council is to serve as a liaison between students, clubs, faculty, and administration. The Student Council is designed to be an open forum where students can exchange information, opinions, and ideas pertaining to the overall collegiate experience.

The council also organizes many social functions for Stern students to promote school spirit, unity, and camaraderie. In addition to Stern cafés, holiday festivals, and international celebrations, the council sponsors the annual Spring Semi-Formal and other major social events and outings.

The Student Council office is located on the upper concourse of Tisch Hall, Room UC51. It is staffed by council members, and students are encouraged to send e-mail to council@stern.nyu.edu. Students are also invited and welcome to attend the weekly council meetings.
INTER-CLUB COUNCIL
The Inter-Club Council (ICC) is the governing and coordinating body for Stern clubs and organizations. It is composed of the officers of each of the clubs, as well as an executive board, which is the administrative body of the ICC. It has the power to create new clubs and ensures that each upholds the school’s standards. From the budget approved for the ICC, money is allocated to the organizations whose activities it regulates. The Inter-Club Council promotes clubs on campus, sponsors social activities, and provides numerous opportunities for professional and leadership development.

CLUBS OF THE COLLEGE
For every major at Stern, there is a club that sponsors events and enables students to come in contact with professionals in their fields of interest. Additionally, several clubs bridge multiple majors, providing information and resources for professional interests that are not explored through the Stern curriculum. Club activities are determined by the membership and generally include guest speakers, films, trips, seminars, exhibits, and special events. Students may join as many clubs in the Undergraduate College as they wish, and membership is not limited to their major area.

The Undergraduate College has the following clubs:

Accounting Society. The purpose of the Accounting Society is to give students the opportunity to learn about the career possibilities in public and private accounting and in the government and teaching sectors. It aims to give all interested students the background and knowledge to become good businesspeople. The society focuses on up-to-date accounting topics and combines input from students and company representatives in seminars, lectures, and other forums. For more information, visit www.stern.nyu.edu/~acctg.

Actuarial Society. The Actuarial Society provides students with an opportunity to learn about different careers in the field and meet with a number of professionals. The organization sponsors information sessions with speakers from various corporations and works with the other Stern clubs. For more information, visit www.stern.nyu.edu/~actrlsc.

Business and Politics Group. The Business and Politics Group (BPG) is an undergraduate student organization that promotes the practical value of business-politics interfaces. Members participate through speaker events, special presentations on important business-politics related issues, biweekly newstracker, book talks, and networking events. The club’s membership base is beyond the Stern School, and thus serves as a bridge between Stern students and students from other NYU schools. For more information, please visit http://pages.stern.nyu.edu/~bpg.

Economics Honor Society. The Economics Honors Society (EHS) seeks to encourage a greater awareness of key economic and social issues, to facilitate learning opportunities that augment the curricula, and to foster professional development. EHS hosts intimate roundtable discussions that expose members to premier authorities in the field of economics, business executives, and leaders in government and public affairs. EHS strives to afford its programs to the greater NYU community; to establish closer ties between students, faculty, and the professional world; and to secure research opportunities for NYU students with prominent faculty. EHS also regularly participates in group community service projects that better the city that is our home. For more information, visit www.coon.nyu.edu/echs.

Entrepreneurial Exchange Group. The Entrepreneurial Exchange Group (EEG) is an undergraduate organization established to promote and enhance opportunities for students interested in entrepreneurial pursuits. There are currently over 500 participants from all academic disciplines within the University. Some members have started their own businesses, many are in the process, and all have had encounters of one kind or another with the “entrepreneurial bug.” There are numerous activities sponsored for members. Chief among them is the Luncheon Speakers Series, through which a speaker is invited to have an intimate and informal conversation with a select group of students over lunch. In addition, there are a number of dinner speaker events, tours to offices of entrepreneurial companies, and an annual conference on entrepreneurship that regularly draws over 800 people. For more information, visit www.stern.nyu.edu/~eg.

Finance Society. The Finance Society, the New York University affiliate of the American Finance Association, promotes a better understanding of the field through the sponsorship of lectures by educators and businesspeople in such areas as commercial banking, investment banking, and insurance. These presentations enable society members to come in contact with business leaders actively involved in major stock exchanges, over-the-counter firms, banks, and financial trade markets. For more information, visit www.stern.nyu.edu/~finclub.

Information Systems Society. The Information Systems Society is the premier extracurricular resource for undergraduate students interested in information management, media, and technology. The organization has two major goals: (1) to educate members in the latest technological advances in the computer industry and (2) to help them enter the job market by providing information on job opportunities. The first goal is accomplished by offering an introductory tutorial on a software or programming language so that students can gain limited exposure to skills used in the market and by inviting reputable speakers to speak about the trend of the computer industry as part of the Speakers Series. The second goal is achieved by providing members opportunities to attend recruiting events and corporate visits to meet potential employers. For more information, visit www.stern.nyu.edu/~iss.

International Business Association. The purpose of the International Business Association (IBA) is to focus on the changes and developments of multinational corporations and financial institutions that affect international politics and finance. IBA exposes its members to international politics and economics. International students can learn about careers that may be right for them. IBA conveys this information to students through guest speakers, meetings, a newsletter, an annual journal, independent study, and informal gatherings. For more information, visit www.stern.nyu.edu/~iba.

Investment Analysis Group. The Investment Analysis Group (IAG) was established to educate students about all types of investment opportunities. IAG seeks to actualize the potential of its members by fostering an environment of real possibilities. IAG tries to mimic, as closely as possible, a complete equities research organization. From the presentations to the weekly publications that it produces, IAG prides itself on being professional. For more information, visit www.stern.nyu.edu/~iag.

Management Consulting Group. The Management Consultant Group’s (MCG) mission is to prepare students interested in consulting for a career in this exciting field. MCG provides a highly personalized interview-coaching service so that students can go for any consulting interview with confidence. In addition, MCG organizes networking events with top consulting firms such as McKinsey and Co., Monitor Group, and Deloitte Consulting, to enable students to learn and socialize with top professionals. Furthermore, MCG initiates firm recruitment events.

For more information, visit www.stern.nyu.edu/~mktscw.

Stern Focused Business Leadership Association. The Focused Business Leadership Association (Stern FBLA) is an out-of-the-classroom guide that helps prepare students for the business world. As a nonmajor-related club, Stern FBLA highlights key areas of importance in academic life, the office of career services, the interview process, the internship experience, and the work life. By working with reputable companies, professors, career advisers, and alumni, Stern FBLA provides the fundamentals that any well-rounded business student needs. Through continuous improvement, Stern students develop the poise, confidence, and verbal and nonverbal communication skills needed to be focused leaders in the business world. For more information, visit www.sternfbla.com.

Stern Business Ethics Society. The mission of the Stern Business Ethics Society is to provide students with a forum for an exchange, an understanding and development of personal values, and an opportunity for exposure to real-world ethical dilemmas faced by business professionals. For more information, visit http://pages.stern.nyu.edu/~SBES.

Stern Business and Law Association. The primary objective of the Stern Business and Law Association (SBLA) is to expose students to the political, legal, and social frameworks of society. SBLA is also the Undergraduate College's professional organization for students who plan to attend law school. Prominent legal practitioners meet with students to discuss various aspects of the legal profession and its interaction with business and politics. Specific activities include a lecture series and a law school night where numerous law schools participate in a program dealing with preparatory steps for taking the LSATS and applying to law schools. SBLA is not just for prelaw students. Members major in such diverse fields as accounting, computer science, finance, and marketing as well as in a variety of liberal arts and educational fields. For more information, visit www.stern.nyu.edu/~sbla.

Stern Economics Society. The mission of the Stern Economics Society is to serve as a venue for students to broaden their understanding of the global economy. This is accomplished through guest lectures, open debates, and social events. Students gain exposure to the widespread application of economics and the many opportunities it provides both at NYU and throughout the professional world. For more information, visit http://pages.stern.nyu.edu/~soe.

Stern Health Care Group. The Stern Health Care Group is proud to be the first organization at NYU Stern’s Undergraduate College to bridge together business and science. The group's objectives include exploring opportunities in the health care industry, educating members on the health care field, linking together students of different backgrounds and studies, and inspiring and aiding others in their professional pursuits.

Stern Real Estate Group. The Stern Real Estate Group (SREG) strives to bring a greater understanding of the real estate industry to undergraduates. SREG achieves this goal through both student presentations and professional speakers. In addition, SREG takes advantage of the broad academic offerings at NYU by asking speakers from other departments and schools to speak to the group. SREG also focuses on the academic component of real estate. The goal of these meetings is to help members comprehend the fundamental skills necessary to understand real estate. Case studies are presented and discussed by members of the club that demonstrate the tools necessary to analyze locations, real estate markets, real estate financing, and affordability. For more information, visit http://pages.stern.nyu.edu/~regrp/index.html.

Stern Tisch Entertainment Business Association. STEBA is an organization that is unique to New York University. Its membership is primarily from the Stern School of Business but also includes the Tisch School of the Arts, the Steinhardt School of Education, the College of Arts and Science, and the Center for Hospitality, Tourism, and Sports Management of the School of Continuing and Professional Studies. STEBA often works with outside organizations, and features panelists from major networks, record labels, and film companies in programs that focus on anything from how to become involved in the entertainment industry to controversial topics related to the industry. For more information, visit www.stern.nyu.edu/~steba.

Stern Cares. Stern Cares promotes greater awareness of need in the community and helps students find service opportunities in the greater NYU Stern community. Stern Cares wants students to share responsibility for the communities where they live and work. Activities include numerous community service events and an annual fund-raising talent show. For more information, visit www.stern.nyu.edu/~stncares.

PROGRAMS

Cohen Arts and Culture Experience (CACE)

Living in New York City, Stern students are afforded the great opportunity to take advantage of the city's unrivaled variety of cultural offerings. Through the Jerry and Adrianne Cohen Arts and Culture Experience, every Stern student is given the opportunity to attend cultural events in New York City at greatly subsidized prices. Some of the programs students have had the chance to attend include Broadway and off-Broadway shows, Yankee games, SoHo art galleries, and jazz at Lincoln Center. The Cohen Arts and Culture Experience at Stern is developed in conjunction with student leadership at Stern. Our student-driven Arts and Culture Dean's Advisory Board works closely with Stern administration to promote programming that meets the diverse and varied interests of our student body.

Stern Scholars Program

The Stern Scholars Program is an expansive four-year program designed to foster advanced leadership skills, global awareness, cultural sophistication, and community engagement. Each year, the Scholars Program focuses on a different theme of study that is accompanied by complementary activities. Themes include social entrepreneurship, arts and culture, global ambassadorship, and the school-to-work transition.
Travel, both domestic and international, is a key component of the Scholars Program. In the past, Stern Scholars have traveled to Dublin, Vienna, Paris, and Prague as well as to Washington, DC, and Miami and Naples in Florida. Stern Scholars also participate in community service projects locally and across the country. Additionally, the Scholars Program features the Stern Scholars Executive Lecture Series, which affords students the opportunity to hear from and discuss current issues with outstanding business leaders, many of whom are alumni of the Stern School. In recent years, lectures have featured speakers from companies such as AIG, American Express, Bear Stearns, Blackrock, BusinessWeek, Ernst and Young, Foot Locker USA, GE Capital, Goldman Sachs, Tommy Hilfiger, KMC Telecom, Lehman Brothers, Merrill Lynch, McKinsey and Company, Mobil Corporation, Morgan Stanley, Mr. Olive Capital Management, New York Jets, New York Life Insurance Co., Ntron Advisors, and Time Warner.

Stern Cohort Community Building Initiative

The Stern Cohort Program provides Stern students, from the moment that they arrive on campus, a community of friends and a network of support. Each freshman class is divided into 10 cohorts of 40 to 45 students. Throughout the course of their time at Stern, students enjoy social events on and off campus, professional development forums, corporate visits, and a variety of fun and exciting programming with the members of their cohorts and with Stern alumni.

The Cohort Community Building Initiative offers students a chance to build networks based on common explorations outside of business, encourages new experiences enriched by engaging the diverse offerings of New York City, and provides opportunity for collaboration with student peers, successful alumni, and corporate sponsors. Student leaders take an active role in guiding this initiative and planning events for their cohort.

Stern Enrichment for Academic Development (SEAD)

Stern Enrichment for Academic Development (SEAD) is a student-managed organization dedicated to promoting excellence in academics and leadership while enhancing the overall undergraduate experience. The program is committed to fostering support and cultural enrichment for all students through innovative presentations, activities, and services. In particular, SEAD hopes to engage students of all races and ethnicities in its efforts to expand cultural awareness, while creating a supportive environment for underrepresented students. For more information, visit http://pages.stern.nyu.edu/~sead.

BUSINESS FRATERNITIES

Alpha Kappa Psi was founded at NYU in 1904 and is America’s first business fraternity. Today, it has more than 200,000 members and the first international business fraternity with chapters in Canada and the UK. Alpha Kappa Psi prepares its members for the business world through professional speaker events, networking opportunities, and alumni workshops. It builds lasting bonds of a brotherhood that will continue through college years and beyond. Professional speaker events have included representatives from JP Morgan, PriceWaterhouseCoopers, Black Rock, L’Oreal, and American Express. Alpha Kappa Psi also partners with community service organizations such as FreeArtsNYC and NY Cares.

The members of Alpha Kappa Psi reflect the world’s diversity and are united by a common interest in business and other related fields. Alpha Kappa Psi’s mission is to develop well-trained, ethical, skilled, resourceful, and experienced business leaders. For more information, visit http://pages.stern.nyu.edu/~akpsi.

Beta Alpha Psi is the national honor fraternity for financial information professionals for men and women who have proven academic excellence. The purpose of the fraternity is to prepare students to succeed in the professional business environment by providing exposure to key issues in accounting, economics, finance, technical applications, and a variety of rewarding professional and social activities. The goal of the fraternity is to provide for its members the most current information in the various areas that are shaping their careers. Obtaining such knowledge makes members more marketable and valuable in the business world. The fraternity is located at Tisch Hall, Room 400. For more information, visit www.stern.nyu.edu/~bap.

Phi Chi Theta is a national business fraternity for students specializing in business or economics. It seeks to enhance the quality of one’s education and career preparation, while encouraging cooperation and interaction among those sharing similar interests. The New York Beta Chapter of Phi Chi Theta at NYU sponsors events that enable students to learn from successful professionals at the Executive Lecture Series and to socialize at various mingles. It also provides the chance to serve the surrounding community through activities such as holiday parties for underprivileged children and participation in Meals on Wheels. It is a chance to begin networking and building friendships to last a lifetime. The fraternity’s office is located at 21 Washington Place. For more information, visit www.stern.nyu.edu/~phiichi.

STERN ALUMNI ACTIVITIES

Stern alumni are ever present in the lives of undergraduate students. From their involvement with the Cohort Program, their presentations to Stern clubs to mentoring students through the Career Advisory Program on Stern’s Worldwide Alumni Platform, to providing internships and full-time employment opportunities, students at Stern benefit from the strong alumni base in the New York City metropolitan area, around the country, and throughout the world. Stern’s Office of Alumni Affairs and the Office of Student Life coordinate alumni programs. For more information, visit www.stern.nyu.edu/alumni.

INTERNATIONAL PROGRAMS AND STUDY ABROAD

New York University is committed to expanding educational opportunities for its students. In keeping with New York University’s commitment to be a truly global university, Stern encourages its students to participate in a study abroad program.

There are two opportunities for students to participate: (1) Stern’s International Business Exchange Program (IBEX) and (2) the NYU Study Abroad Program, the University-wide program in which Stern students can participate.

The following are brief descriptions of the programs available to Stern students for international study.

IBEX: Stern’s International Business Exchange Program

IBEX partner institutions are schools where Stern maintains a direct exchange of students. The goal of IBEX is to expand opportunities for international education to Stern students. Through IBEX, Stern juniors and seniors have the opportunity to study business at leading business universities and discover the intellectual, cultural, and social life of another country. These programs are among the finest in the world and represent a remarkable opportunity to expand your horizons.

All of the courses in these programs are taught in English. For exchange programs in countries where English is not the first language, students also have the option to take courses in the native language.

All of the exchange partners offer spring term exchanges. The following schools do NOT offer fall term exchanges: Sciences Po, Dauphine University, University of Amsterdam, and University of Navarra.

Students may choose to study abroad in the fall or spring of their junior year or fall of their senior year, depending on the program. Students who study abroad during the spring semester of their junior year will not be able to travel as part of the International Studies Program. Students in this situation should speak with their academic adviser about their options.

Listed below are Stern’s current IBEX partner institutions.

NYU Study Abroad Program
NYU offers its own programs in Berlin, Florence, Ghana, London, Madrid, Paris, Prague, and Shanghai taught by NYU faculty members and international faculty members from host universities. Students typically study abroad at a NYU campus during their sophomore or junior year in school. The courses taken abroad are identical with those offered here at New York University. More information about academic year study abroad programs is available at www.nyu.edu/studyabroad. Additional information about summer study abroad programs is available at www.nyu.edu/summer/abroad.

TRAVEL CODE OF CONDUCT
All students who travel with the Undergraduate College of the Stern School of Business are expected to maintain the highest standards of professional conduct and integrity. In addition to complying with all College and University policies and procedures (see the NYU Rules of Conduct at www.nyu.edu/students.guide/policies/pol-main-rules.html) governing student conduct, a student’s travel responsibilities include the following:

1. A duty to respect the privacy rights of members of the community by avoiding all forms of intimidation, including sexual and physical harassment.
2. A duty to refrain from causing physical injury to yourself and others. Students will be held financially and legally responsible for any and all damage they inflict upon other persons.
3. A duty to refrain from causing damage to real or personal property of others. Students will be held financially and legally responsible for any and all damage they inflict upon the property of others.
4. A duty to preserve the quality of facilities that they may visit or reside at during their travels.
5. A duty to respect cultural differences. This includes observing the proper etiquette in business/social settings, e.g., being punctual for appointments, not speaking out of turn, etc.
6. A duty to refrain from irresponsible behavior, including the inappropriate consumption of alcohol.
7. A duty to not leave the city for any personal excursions or trips (unless organized by Stern).
8. A duty to not operate motorized vehicles.
9. A duty to not participate in risky athletic/recreational activities (e.g., scuba, parachuting, parasailing, etc.).
10. A duty to not violate laws whether they result in arrest or not.
11. A duty to report to representatives of the School any person known by the student to have violated the Travel Code of Conduct.
