Course Syllabus
Investment Strategies

Professor: Richard Bernstein
Course #: B40.3122.60

Wednesday Evenings from 6:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m.
Room: TBD

This course will discuss various investment strategies utilized by professional investors. It aims to give you practical insights regarding how strategies are used, and to better understand the strategies’ strengths and weaknesses. Free copied materials are supplied by the professor and the guest lecturers.

The course objective is to give you a subjective and anecdotal approach to securities analysis, relative valuation, industry and group rotation, asset allocation, market timing, “theme” investing, and quantitative analysis. Several guest lecturers will speak to explore some of these concepts.

Both old and new market theories will be discussed within the context of financial history, including various sentiment, psychological, style, and cyclical influences on securities prices. Contrasts will be drawn between long-term and short-term strategies. Equity and fixed-income strategies will be investigated.

A considerable portion of each class will be an interactive discussion relating the concepts covered in the classes to actual financial market events, and a written mid-term assignment will mimic such discussions. The final written examination will focus on the basic concepts learned in class.

Grading for the course will be determined as follows: Mid-term assignment (40%), Final examination (40%), and class participation (20%).
